Receiving and Responding to an Invitation

As a reviewer, you will be notified by email of an invitation to review a manuscript. Text of the email is customized by each journal so their appearance may vary.

Many times, emails come embedded with hyperlink invitation responses. Clicking the appropriate hyperlink sends the response to the journal.

The system notifies the editor and forwards the manuscript to your Reviewer Center. You will receive an Invitation Response email containing any specific instructions you may need in order to proceed, including your user ID and password.

If emails do not come with embedded response links, respond directly to the editor by email.
